

PERCEPTION OF GENDER IN VET

Vocational education and training provides practical experience in a particular occupational field, as agriculture, home economics, or industry and it establishes the base of work force in the countries. However, VET is the area where we can see the perception of gender. For example, while nursing is a field in which females are employed, turnery is the field in which males are employed. Therefore, in this project, we intend to explore the young people's perception of gender in VET and promote them to canalize different employability areas that they would like to do other than the very well-known males or females areas. This idea is also focusing on the gender distribution in different areas of employment by taking diversity and inclusion into consideration, which are one of the important elements of gender equity and equality.
